

Supporting the armed forces community

Members of the armed forces community make tremendous sacrifices in the service of our nation.

Under the Armed Forces Covenant, you have a duty to support those who serve, ensuring they are treated with fairness and respect.

What is the Armed Forces Covenant?

The Covenant helps members of the armed forces community have the same access to public and commercial services as any other citizen.

It is the nation's commitment to honour those who serve.

Who does it apply to?

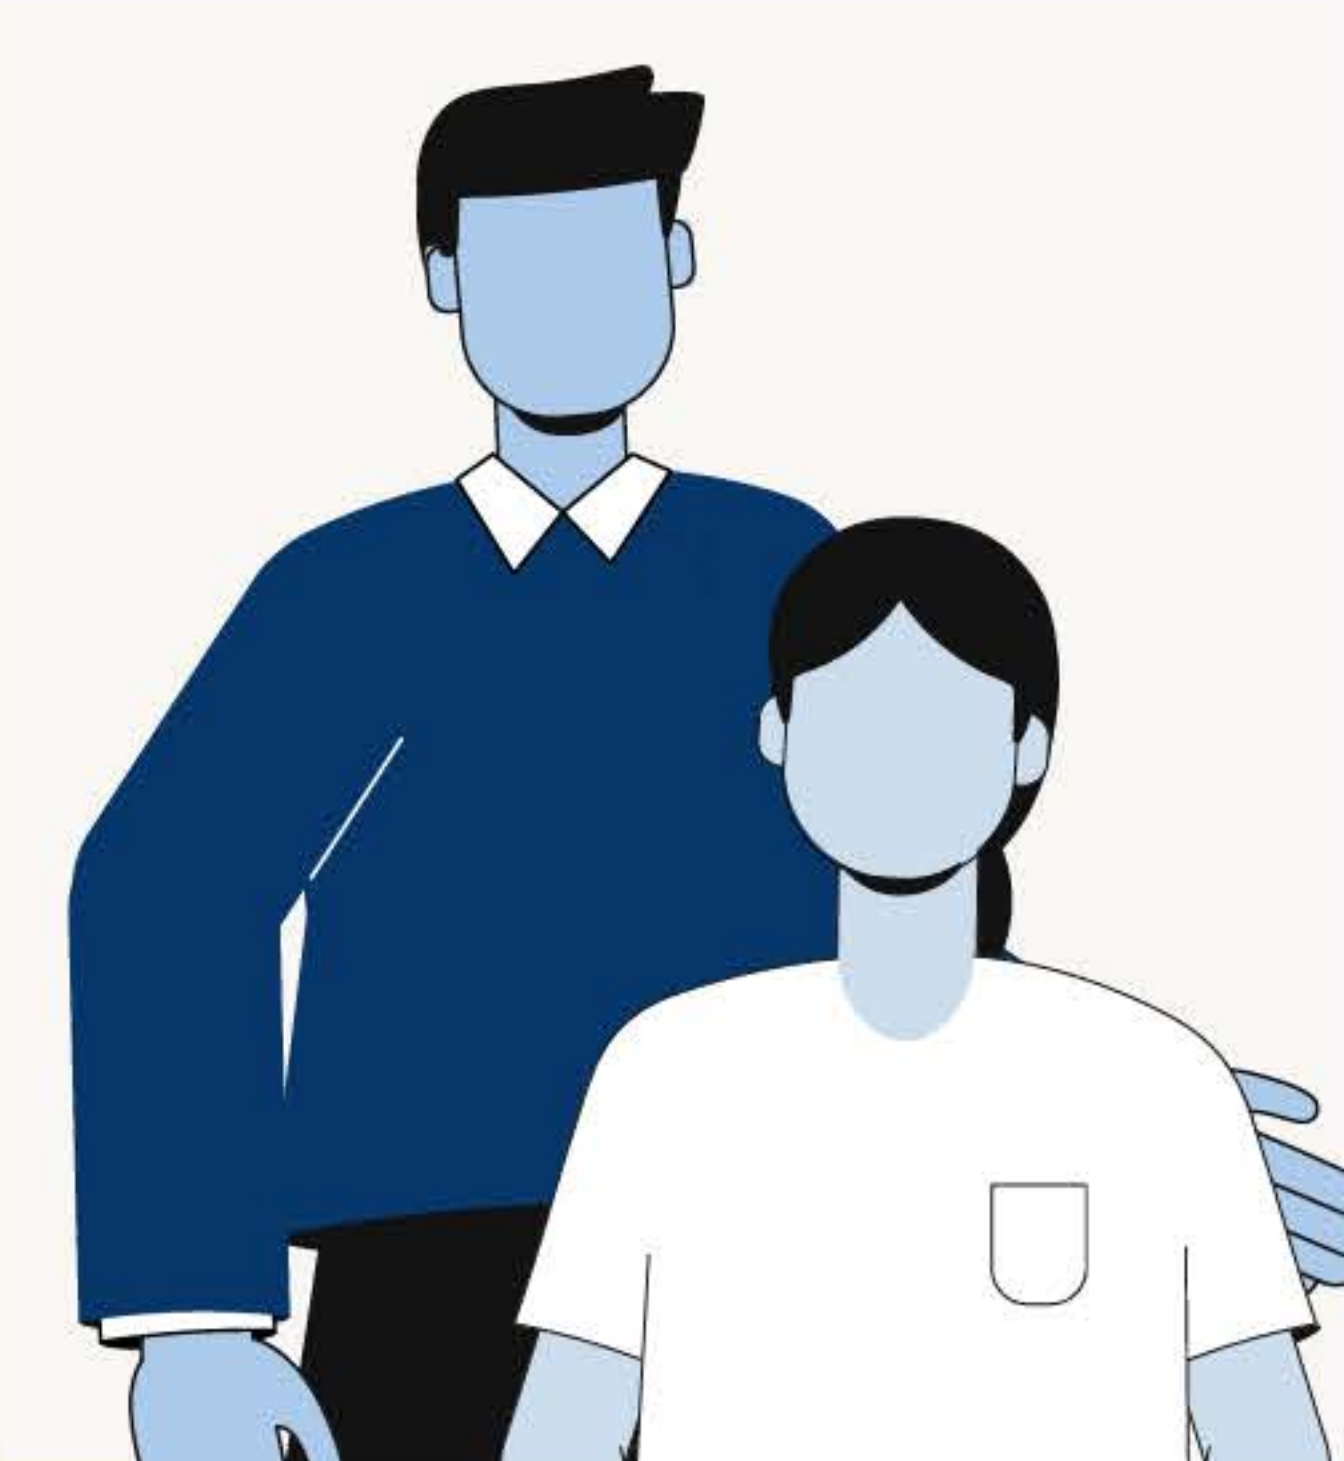

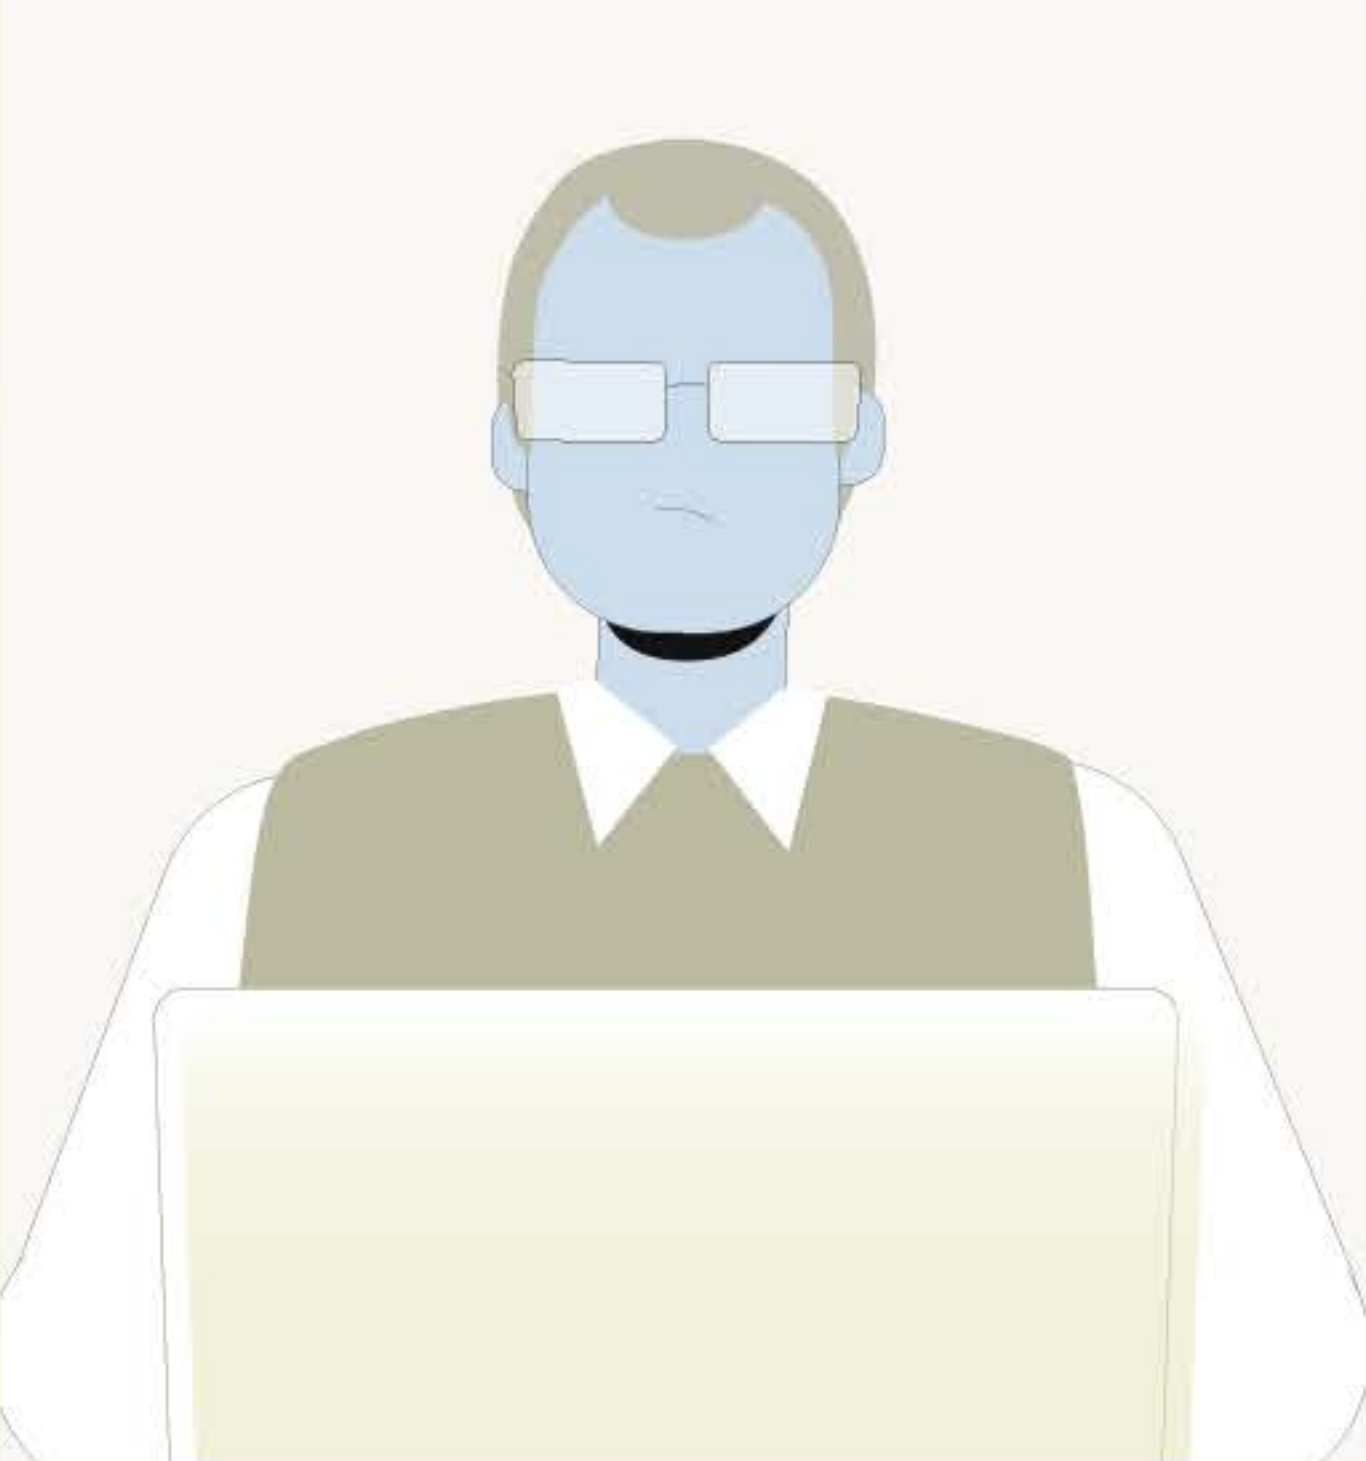

The Armed Forces Covenant applies to:

Active service personnel

Veterans

Reservists

Family members

What does it cover?

Under the Covenant, public sector bodies have a duty to provide support in various areas, including:

Healthcare

Housing

Education

What can you do?

Everyone in the public sector has a responsibility to ensure the needs of the armed forces community are being met.

To do your part, regularly ask yourself the following questions:

How do you identify members of the armed forces community in your organisation?

How does this affect the service you deliver in your community?

What are the challenges facing the armed forces community in your area?

What could your organisation do to address some of these challenges?
